Among these, the 21- 40 years segment occupied the major share of the market in 2023 and is projected to maintain its dominance during the forecast period. The impressive growth of the market, particularly among individuals aged 21 to 40 years, can be attributed to their active and enthusiastic participation in a diverse range of events, such as exhibitions, conferences, seminars, and music concerts. This age group exhibits a strong interest in attending various gatherings and shows, playing a significant role in driving market expansion. Furthermore, there is a noticeable surge in demand for entrepreneur and business-focused seminars and conferences, which offer invaluable guidance and insights to young individuals who aspire to start their own ventures. These events prove highly beneficial for those entrepreneurs in acquisition of essential knowledge and direction, thereby fueling further events industry market growth within this segment. Additionally, the increasing popularity of music concerts and festive gatherings is expected to positively contribute to the overall growth of the market.

By origin of attendees, the market is categorized into national, continental, and transcontinental. The national segment held the major share of the market in 2023. Events tailored to local markets, industries, or cultural preferences naturally attract more national participants. For instance, events that address local industry trends, government policies, or country-specific regulations are more relevant to domestic audiences. National holidays, festivals, or cultural events rooted in the country's traditions also boost attendance, as locals identify with and celebrate their cultural heritage. Additionally, national pride and support for homegrown businesses or initiatives can influence domestic attendees to prefer attending local events, further strengthening the participation of national audiences.

By event location, the market is segmented into tier 1 cities, tier 2 cities, and tier 3 cities. The tier 1 cities segment held the major share of the market in 2023. These cities are often recognized worldwide for their economic, cultural, or political significance, which makes hosting events there highly prestigious. Tier 1 cities provide credibility and glamour to any event, making them attractive not only to attendees but also to sponsors and exhibitors who seek a high-visibility platform. This brand appeal often translates to larger marketing reach, better media coverage, and an increase in sponsorship and partnerships, driving event organizers to choose these cities for their global appeal and association with success and influence.

By region, the market is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA. Europe occupied the major share of the market in 2023 and is projected to maintain its dominance during the forecast period. Germany and Spain are projected to witness significant increase in event activity, with various types of meetings, owing to which it experiences growth in both attendance and numbers. Companies in the region have displayed greater financial prudence, which leads to a demand for events at mid-scale venues closer to their base of operations, such as conferences, seminars, and festivals.
