member of the California Association of Community Managers (CACM). CACM is the leading professional association in California for community association managers and service providers who serve and support the industry. With more than 1,200 state laws impacting homeowners associations (HOAs), CACM focuses exclusively on the training and certification of California community managers and is the only organization in the nation to offer a California-specific educational program.

Ballot Bliss, an online voting software for HOAs, is revolutionizing the voting process for communities. This secure, user-friendly, and cost-effective platform is becoming the go-to solution for communities seeking a seamless and modern voting experience.

In 2024, California passed AB 2159, a law that allows HOAs to conduct electronic voting. This new development has prompted many communities to update their governing documents to facilitate online voting. “We’ve spoken with several election officials and managers at CACM’s Southern California Law Seminar & Expo who are struggling to find a software platform that fulfills their requirements for compliance with both state and community regulations,” says Ashish Patel, CEO and Founder of Ballot Bliss. “Ballot Bliss is one of the few companies that meets these essential needs, with features such as instant results, cumulative voting, truly secret ballots, and voting receipts for residents.”

“We are proud to have Ballot Bliss join our CACM membership and would like to recognize their professional commitment to providing outstanding service to their HOA clients,” said Thomas Freeley, president and chief executive officer of CACM. “We look forward to supporting Ballot Bliss with our continuing education program and the California-specific expertise industry professionals need in order to benefit homeowners living in California HOAs.”
