streamline crew deployment and compliance documentation, ultimately saving time and money for Cruitfly clients across the United States.

By integrating FieldFlō's technology into Cruitfly's staffing operations, customers will benefit from real-time access to crew member names, credentials, and jobsite documentation — all in a secure, digital platform. This eliminates the delays and manual errors common with traditional paperwork, while offering complete visibility into jobsite readiness and compliance.

“Our clients demand speed, compliance, and quality labor — and now, with our exclusive partnership with FieldFlō, we're delivering that at a whole new level,” said Dean Kinslow, President and Co-Owner of Cruitfly. “We're committed to setting a new standard in staffing for environmental services, and FieldFlō is the perfect partner to help us do just that.”

FieldFlō's cloud-based platform provides customized tools to manage certifications, training records, and crew assignment history — helping ensure every crew member is fully qualified before stepping onto a jobsite.

“We built FieldFlō to bring greater efficiency to subcontractor businesses and their partners,” said Roni Szigeti, CEO and Co-Founder of FieldFlō. “Cruitfly's national reach and commitment to safety and compliance make them an ideal partner to help scale that vision, especially when it comes to simplifying complex labor operations in the environmental services industry.”

The exclusive partnership reflects a shared mission to empower contractors and project managers with smarter tools, faster onboarding, and more transparent labor management — in industries where every hour and every dollar counts.

This integration is now in development and will be available to all Cruitchfly clients nationwide late summer 2025.
