no-code AI platform, and name.com, a leading domain registration service, are excited to announce the launch of a free AI-powered LinkedIn Profile-to-Website Converter. This feature allows professionals to create a personal website using their LinkedIn profile or resume PDF, complete with a free .bio domain for one year, hosted by name.com.

This collaboration simplifies the process of creating a professional online presence. With just a few clicks, users can upload their LinkedIn profile or resume PDF to Appy Pie's platform, which will automatically extract key details like work experience, education, and skills. The platform then generates a responsive, structured website, offering users the flexibility to personalize their website's design, layout, and color schemes. No technical skills are required, and users can publish their websites instantly.

“We've empowered anyone to transform their LinkedIn profile or resume PDF into a live, personalized website in minutes,” said Abhinav Girdhar, Founder and CEO of Appy Pie. “This feature, in partnership with name.com, eliminates the complexity traditionally associated with creating a digital identity. Our aim is to make professional visibility accessible to everyone.”

This solution is ideal for job seekers, freelancers, consultants, and any professional looking to build their online presence without the need for traditional web development. The included .bio domain offers a unique and professional touch to users' digital identities, helping them stand out in a crowded online world.
