The Morris County Chamber is committed to enabling our members to connect, collaborate and succeed...Our annual golf outing helps us bring these offerings to our members.”

Meghan Hunscher, President

“The Morris County Chamber of Commerce is committed to enabling our members to connect, collaborate and succeed while supporting the community as a whole,” said Meghan Hunscher, chamber president. “We achieve this by hosting more than 250 events and programs each year designed to enhance and educate. Our annual golf outing helps us bring these offerings to our members and, through them, the community. We are especially grateful to our many sponsors who help make this event such a success each year.”

Each spring at the event the chamber presents the annual Business and Community Service Award to an organization with an exceptional record of serving its community by supporting local organizations, promoting employee volunteerism and contributing to the economic and social well-being of the region.

This year the chamber recognized NOMADICS for contributing to the future generations of GIS (Geographic Information System), defense and engineering specialists and investing in the community by being ethical and responsible in its corporate operations. Dr. Nicholas M. D'Ambrosio, founder and CEO, accepted the award.

To provide attendees with even more entertainment, the chamber introduced new elements to the outing this year, including a two-hour clinic with Spring Brook pros, a putt-for-wine contest and on-course games.

Because the spring golf classic is so popular, the chamber now holds a second outing in the fall, according to Hunscher. This year's fall classic is scheduled for September 29 at Knoll Country Club. For more information or to register, visit <https://bit.ly/MorrisChamberFallGolf2025>.
