What Is Driving The Growth Of The SAAS Based Human Resource Market?

An important driver contributing towards the growth of the SAAS based human resource market is the increasing adoption of remote work. Essentially, remote work is an arrangement where employees undertake their job responsibilities outside a traditional office setup, generally from home or another location away from the employer's premises. The surge in remote work can be traced to a change in attitudes towards work-life balance and the necessity of ensuring business continuity during significant global events such as the COVID-19 pandemic. SAAS-based HR solutions are indispensable towards establishing and preserving a successful remote work culture through the provision of necessary tools and infrastructure that help in the efficient management of remote employees.
