expansion, because American licensed physicians do not need a special visa or work permit to practice in the territorial islands, however, they must apply and be approved for licensure by the US Virgin Islands board of medical examiners and/or Puerto Rico medical board of examiners - both of which are very similar, if not the same process of obtaining a state license in the United States. Goddard states "we're very proud to continue our expansion - which has been 100% by referral and word of mouth. Our company is working with a who's who in American healthcare, we're proud to call some of the most respected names in US healthcare, our clients".

Cardinal Healthcare Group, based in Rogers, Arkansas, is a Nationally respected, healthcare consulting/recruiting firm with over 700 clients in 50 US states - and now the VIs and Puerto Rico, and over 31 years of experience.
