Military Broadcast Radio

This year, three Veterans and three First Responders will jump from 10,000 feet — not just for the adrenaline rush, but as a bold declaration of independence from trauma, disability, and the invisible wounds of service.

They're not falling — they're rising above their fears. This jump is a symbol of healing, courage, and the power to overcome.”

Joel Hunt

“They're not falling — they're rising above their fears,” said Joel Hunt, Executive Director of MBR and a combat-injured Veteran. “This jump is a testament to courage, healing, and the belief that our heroes can soar again.”
