3. Rationale for Share Acquisition and Capital and Business Alliance

The Company will enter the "Corporate Well-being Market." Corporate well-being refers to initiatives that focus on employees' physical and mental health, aiming to improve happiness at work and workplace environments, and solving organizational and individual employee issues through various measures. The market size in Japan is expected to reach approximately 117 billion yen by 2033*, and the Company anticipates continued growth as corporate interest and needs further increase.

The capital and business alliance between TANABE CONSULTING GROUP, a pioneer in management consulting in Japan, and PEACEMIND, a pioneer in EAP services in Japan, will enable the Company to provide world-class professional services and proprietary management consulting services to large and mid-sized enterprises.

This will enable multifaceted and comprehensive approaches to address issues in human resources/human capital—a challenge for both society and management—including talent strategy, human resource development, HR systems, DE&I organizational development, health management, workplace environment, and individual employee problem-solving, thereby delivering value that enhances organizational performance.

4. Capital and Business Alliance to Advance Group Vision

In the Company's medium-term management plan (2021-2025) "TCG Future Vision 2030," the Company aims to "create a proprietary management consulting model" that provides comprehensive support from management strategy formulation to implementation through professional DX services for large enterprises to small and medium-sized companies, with a focus on upper mid-sized companies.

There are a few examples of corporate well-being specialists joining management consulting groups. This alliance will strengthen the Company's "HR Consulting" capabilities within the Company's management consulting domain. Additionally, the implementation of PEACEMIND's "Hataraku wo Yoku Suru® Platform—Working Better Cloud (WBC)" system will enable the Company to provide new "Professional DX Services." This creates particularly strong synergies with the "DE&I" and "Women's Career Advancement Research Institute" value propositions offered by Surpass, which joined the Group last year, enabling sustainable growth and social value creation.

Together with the Company's group companies—Tanabe Consulting (strategy and management consulting), Leading Solutions (B2B digital marketing), Growin' Partners (comprehensive M&A support including cross-border transactions and back-office BPR/DX support), Jaythree (branding and CX design), Kartz Media Works (strategic PR domestically and internationally), and Surpass (DE&I organizational development)—the Company's proprietary corporate value of "diverse professional talent" will maximize group synergies through our "co-creation model" to solve strategic challenges faced by corporate top management.
