

New School Communication Platform Unlocks Parent Volunteering in K-12 Private Schools

School Signals introduces a long-missing solution in school communication: organized parent volunteering made simple.

DENTON, TX, UNITED STATES, July 8, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- School Signals is pleased to announce its Volunteering feature for independent and private schools to meet their high communication consistency and parent engagement expectations. Built from the ground up with input from education-focused needs analysis, the School Signals volunteer system addresses a long-standing gap in K-12 communication platforms.

Signing up for a volunteering schedule remains one of the most disorganized school tasks, and school communication apps have not addressed the need for a comprehensive solution to handle parent volunteering. Schools still depend on paper-based methods, email threads, third-party links/websites that leave parents using multiple systems and channels, with unclear expectations for notifications and reminders.

School Signals clarifies the volunteering sign-up chaos with a robust, unified volunteering system: a parent account integrated volunteer sign-up platform with audience-based settings

Unify and Activate School Volunteering with School Signals

Mobile School Communication Management that allows the whole organization to activate and optimize parent volunteering school-wide in one place.

Signing up for a volunteer opportunity is effortless and takes just a few clicks, either using a laptop/desktop or the School Signals mobile app. Since the system already recognizes who the user signing up for the volunteer opportunity is and what grade levels their children attend, the communication platform can supply relevant volunteer opportunities for parents. Recurring volunteering sign-ups are easy, too.

"Parents don't want to use many logins to keep up with everything that's going on in their child's school. By giving schools robust volunteering tools in School Signals, we want to ensure that volunteering isn't the reason parents have to bounce between apps," stated Meri Kuusi-Shields, School Signals Software Product Designer.

Volunteer Listing Are Coordinated and Relevant

Parent volunteering is a key parameter and indicator of an inclusive, positive school community. In many independent schools, parent volunteering is also a mandatory part of parents' commitment to their child's school. With School Signals, parent volunteering is coordinated, user-friendly, and integrated with reminders.

School Signals recognizes that volunteering takes place in many forms: Regularly in the classroom, in classroom and school events, as part of PTA or PTO, and during school field trips. When the parent visits their classroom page, RSVPs to an event, or joins the PTA or PTO, they can see related volunteering. The volunteer opportunity can be itemized with task lists, helping to organize events where the volunteer job types are numerous. New opportunities are automatically posted to the School Feed, where integrated notifications go out to parents to spread the word.

About School Signals

School Signals communication and parent engagement software and app for public and private schools is developed for proactive and unified communication, reducing the number of needed apps to run parent-teacher conference PTC scheduling, volunteer sign-ups, school events, parent-teacher messaging, classroom updates, and school-wide news and announcements.

The system is built for two-way communication, where all community members have a voice. Admin and audience tools and controls keep the communication relevant and deliver notifications according to parents' preferences.

School Signals is for both desktop and mobile. The School Signals app is available for authorized users in the Google Play and Apple App Store.
