Hailing from Memphis, Tennessee, Brassfield continues to make waves on the country scene. "I'm all about a good love song, and this one was inspired by a buddy of mine who was trying to get his girlfriend back," Brassfield says. "It's a classic 'I love this girl' song, and it just felt right to me to make it about Colorado. So many songs have been written about that beautiful state—Merle Haggard, John Denver, Joe Walsh, Tim McGraw, and so many more have made it part of their music. We're hoping for the next big Colorado song!"

Rocky Mountain High

Written by: Jack Brassfield & Dustin Rollins

Verse 1

Only you could make me feel like this.

You're the only one I trust with these feelings.

When I think of you, I start to smile.

Only you can drive me this wild.

Verse 2

Do you remember those Colorado nights?

All you had to do was look me in the eyes.

That hazel combination of brown, green, and gold

Had me losing total control.

Chorus

I think my secret's out—it's true.

It's safe to say that baby, I love you.

You're my girl and I'm your guy,

My hello and my goodbye,

The reason that I get up and try.

You're my Rocky Mountain High.

Verse 3

I love the way that you love red wine
And the way that our families have combined.
When I think about our next twenty years,
All that I can see is you and me right here.
