Chairman*

The collaboration aims to provide attendees and industry stakeholders with early insights into the key topics, technologies, and innovations that will be explored at this year's event.

“This is a unique opportunity to deepen engagement with our audience and extend the reach of our speakers,” said Pat Patterson, Chairman of the Small Satellite Conference. “The SmallSat Revolution Podcast is a great platform for exploring emerging ideas and innovations shaping the future of small satellite technology.”

Hosted by veteran broadcaster and business educator Frank Felker, the SmallSat Revolution Podcast, Powered by GomSpace has emerged as a trusted voice for small satellite professionals, featuring candid conversations with pioneers, engineers, investors, and policymakers shaping the global space economy.

“We are honored to work with Pat and the conference team to showcase the voices behind the most exciting developments in the field,” said Felker. “With topics ranging from assembly, integration, and testing to space situational awareness, our goal is to spark meaningful conversations that inform and inspire.”

The interview series will highlight conference speakers from across the commercial, defense, civil, and academic sectors, providing audiences with a deeper understanding of both technical content and real-world applications.

All episodes will be available on the SmallSat Revolution Podcast YouTube channel, LinkedIn, Facebook, and all major podcast platforms, beginning in mid-July 2025.
