

Prestige Economics Launches Cold War Two Wargame

Prestige Economics launches Cold War Two, a wargame featuring geoeconomic and geopolitical strategic simulations for business, government, and defense leaders.

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, July 10, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Prestige Economics, a top-ranked economic and strategic advisory firm, is proud to announce the launch of Cold War Two wargames. This new offering delivers customized simulation experiences that help business, government, and defense leaders stress-test strategies, anticipate global disruptions, and build resilience in an era of intensifying geopolitical and economic risk.

Developed by Jason Schenker, President of Prestige Economics and a globally recognized economist and futurist, Cold War Two wargames are based on Prestige Economics' proprietary and trademarked Cold War Two® research. This unique framework reflects the modern global power struggle between the United States and its allies, on one hand, and China, Russia, Iran, and North Korea, on the other.

"You don't have to predict the future to prepare for it," said Jason Schenker. "Cold War Two wargames help leaders engage directly with the risks and opportunities shaping this new era of strategic competition. The experience is grounded in real-world data and geopolitical dynamics."

Each Cold War Two wargame integrates game theory, futurist frameworks, military-style scenario design, and economic dynamics into a high-impact strategic exercise tailored to the specific risks, industry exposure, and global footprint of each client.

Highlights of Cold War Two Wargames

The Prestige Economics Cold War Two wargames also draw on the research Jason Schenker has been conducting as part of his current dissertation work to receive a PhD from Bath Spa University in the United Kingdom.
