

Jennifer Natter of Harris Air Systems Shares HVAC Maintenance Tips for Seasonal Tune-Ups in HelloNation

How can homeowners make their HVAC systems last longer while maintaining energy efficiency?

TOOELE, UT, UNITED STATES, July 11, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- How can homeowners make their HVAC systems last longer while maintaining energy efficiency? This practical concern is Proactive seasonal HVAC maintenance reduces the risk of breakdowns and lowers long-term energy consumption.”

Jennifer Natter

addressed in a detailed feature from HelloNation, where Jennifer Harris Natter of Harris Air Systems LLC outlines key seasonal tune-up strategies. The article explains how routine maintenance tasks not only reduce the risk of breakdowns but also optimize comfort and system performance throughout the year.

Harris Natter highlights air filter replacement as the most essential and frequent task, recommending changes every one to three months depending on conditions in the home. Ensuring outdoor condensers are clear of debris and cleaning coils as needed helps preserve cooling function and minimize wear. The article also stresses the importance of duct inspection, noting that sealed joints can prevent air loss and improve system efficiency. Finally, it recommends thermostat calibration and testing of safety controls to ensure accurate operation and detect early issues before seasonal temperature extremes place greater demands on equipment.

These strategies reflect a proactive approach to HVAC maintenance that can help homeowners manage energy costs and extend the life of their systems. The full article, Seasonal HVAC Tune-Up Strategies for System Longevity, provides actionable guidance based on expert insight.
