

WBOC's DelmarvaLife Interview Showcases the Legacy and Vision of Borsello Landscaping

Borsello Landscaping was featured on WBOC's DelmarvaLife, where the team discussed the company's in-house design-build process and evolution over three decades.

LEWES, DE, UNITED STATES, July 11, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Borsello Landscaping was recently featured on WBOC TV's DelmarvaLife, where Founder and President Mike Borsello and Landscape Architect Conway Bristow discussed the company's evolution from modest beginnings into a leading outdoor design company serving Delaware and Pennsylvania. The interview spotlighted Borsello Landscaping and its 30 years of enhancing how homeowners and businesses interact with their spaces through a fully integrated process that keeps every phase under one roof.

During the interview, Mike Borsello recalled the company's humble beginnings – borrowing his grandmother's credit card to buy his first lawn mower – and how that same hands-on dedication continues to shape the team's work today.

"It's always been about doing things right and doing them personally," said Borsello. "Now, with our in-house team handling everything from design to execution, we're able to offer a seamless experience that keeps quality and communication front and center."

Also featured in the segment was Landscape Architect Conway Bristow, whose international design experience spans projects in Qatar and China. His decision to return to his family roots in Lewes marks a full-circle moment, bringing a refined, high-end design sensibility to residential landscaping in the region. "It's exciting to take the bespoke approach I've seen globally and apply it to the unique character of homes right here." Bristow noted.

From backyard transformations to full-scale outdoor environments, Borsello Landscaping continues to set the bar for personalized, design-forward spaces across Delaware and Pennsylvania.
