TEL AVIV, HAMERKAZ, ISRAEL, July 14, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ido Kanfi, the acclaimed Israeli

I have faith in my heart and it's like a virus. It gives me strength to run without pain, so I can dream again, even in a gray world.”

Ido Kanfi

singer-songwriter formerly known by his stage name “Ne’eman,” proudly announces a profound artistic rebirth with the release of his deeply personal and spiritually resonant single, “Emuna Medabeket” (אמונה מדבקת), meaning “Contagious Faith.” Released on July 10, 2025, this signature song marks Kanfi’s courageous transition from a protective stage persona to an authentic expression of his true self, embracing vulnerability and hope amid challenging times.

Kanfi’s journey is one of remarkable resilience and profound healing, reflecting not only his personal narrative but also the collective spirit of the Jewish people and the contemporary Israeli experience. His music, deeply rooted in the Hebrew language and rich Jewish tradition, masterfully blends modern Israeli pop with evocative Eastern musical influences, creating a sound that is both timeless in its spiritual depth and innovative in its contemporary appeal.

From “Ne’eman” to Ido Kanfi: A Journey of Authenticity and Healing

For years, Kanfi performed under the stage name “Ne’eman” (נעמן), a Hebrew word meaning “faithful” or “loyal.” He described this persona as “like a mask that protects you.” Now, with a profound sense of purpose, he steps forward as Ido Kanfi (ידו קנפי), shedding the mask to reveal a more genuine and vulnerable voice. His lyrics tell a compelling story of overcoming despair, navigating profound loss and trauma, and ultimately finding strength through unwavering faith and a renewed commitment to life.

In “Emuna Medabeket,” Kanfi sings with raw emotion about breaking free from pain and darkness, inspired by a “contagious faith” that empowers him to “run without pain” and to keep dreaming even when the world feels gray. The song’s heartfelt message resonates deeply with listeners, particularly in light of Israel's current challenges, including the ongoing conflict and the painful reality of the hostage crisis. Kanfi's lyrics serve as a poignant call for unity and healing, urging people to "be good to each other and stop this division already and that the captives return." This message of hope and solidarity is a central pillar of his artistic mission.

A Collaboration Rooted in Tradition and Innovation

The creation of "Emuna Medabeket" is the result of a six-month intensive collaboration with renowned Israeli producer Avi Toledano. Toledano's expertise has helped shape the song's modern arrangements, which are beautifully enriched with traditional Jewish themes. This partnership highlights Kanfi's evolution as an artist, demonstrating his commitment to blending spiritual depth with cutting-edge contemporary sounds. The studio-quality production, featuring keyboards and modern arrangements, provides a powerful backdrop for Kanfi's heartfelt and emotional Hebrew vocal delivery.

Kanfi's music is more than just entertainment; it is a beacon of hope and resilience, offering a therapeutic outlet not only for himself but for the broader community. His work has been embraced by Israeli radio, including Radio Kesem, which has adopted "Emuna Medabeket" into its playlist and featured Kanfi in an interview with Rubi Rabinovich. This widespread adoption and media coverage underscore the song's powerful impact and relevance.
