

FE Masterworks™ Boldly Goes Forward With Artisan Star Trek & E.T. Spaceship Models

CONCORD, CA, UNITED STATES, July 17, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Factory Entertainment, manufacturer of licensed replicas and collectibles, is proud to announce the latest additions to its ultra high-end FE Masterworks™ line of studio-scale models. Known for exceptional attention to detail and authenticity, the FE Masterworks™ line continues to redefine collectible excellence, and this next wave is no exception.

The newest offerings include iconic vessels from Star Trek and E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial. As with all FE Masterworks™ models, each is hand-crafted in the USA by professional modelmakers with extensive experience in the motion picture and/or theme park industry.

Star Trek | U.S.S. ENTERPRISE NCC-1701-E

NEW FE MASTERWORKS™ MODELS

STAR TREK | U.S.S. ENTERPRISE NCC-1701-E

Introduced in Star Trek: First Contact (1996), the Enterprise-E was commanded by Captain Jean-Luc Picard following the destruction of the Enterprise-D. Sleek and powerful, the 1701-E was featured in three Star Trek: The Next Generation films, playing a pivotal role in each film. This studio-scale model is a massive 54-inches in length.

STAR TREK | U.S.S. VOYAGER NCC-74656

As seen in Star Trek: Voyager (1995–2001), this starship was commanded by Captain Kathryn Janeway. For over seven seasons, Voyager and her crew struggled to find their way home, forging new alliances and encountering uncharted dangers. This studio-scale model of a starship known for its cutting-edge design and resilience measures approximately 38-inches in length and comes with a plaque hand-signed by Captain Janeway herself, actress Kate Mulgrew.

STAR TREK | U.S.S. RELIANT NCC-1864
As prominently featured in Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan (1982), the U.S.S. Reliant was hijacked by Khan Noonien Singh to exact revenge on Admiral James T. Kirk. A fan-favorite due to its unique layout and key role in one of the Star Trek franchise's most iconic films, the Reliant studio-scale model is approximately 29 inches in length.

STAR TREK | SHRIKE
As seen in Star Trek: Picard Season 3 (2023), the Shrike was a menacing vessel commanded by the villainous Vadic. The Shrike's sinister design and heavy arsenal made it a formidable presence. The FE Masterworks™ Shrike is approximately 30 inches long.

E.T. | SPACESHIP
The mysterious and graceful spacecraft featured in E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial (1982) is lovingly recreated in studio-scale. Unlike the other made-to-order items in the FE Masterworks™ line, Factory Entertainment commissioned a limited edition of ten of these hand-crafted, 21 inch tall models to accommodate the availability of the model maker. Therefore, the E.T. Spaceship models are now in-stock and available for immediate shipment. Once sold, no further editions will be produced; making this a uniquely finite opportunity to own a piece of cinematic magic.
