David's musical roots have long complemented his acting achievements. He earned a Tony Award nomination for his portrayal of Chimney Man in Jelly's Last Jam, and starred in August Wilson's Seven Guitars, both of which showcased his vocal range and emotional power on stage.

On screen, David's vocal talent has been featured prominently in his film work. He lent his rich baritone to memorable singing roles in Disney's The Princess and the Frog, where he voiced the villainous Dr. Facilier, and in Hazbin Hotel, where he voices Husk, and sings "Loser, Baby," which has accumulated nearly 140 million streams on Spotify.
