

Whimsy Works Skincare Patrol Launches Bold Story of Health, Hope, and Heroism

ATLANTA, GA, UNITED STATES, July 17, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In a world where children are constantly absorbing messages about who they should be, how they should look, and what makes them “normal,” the Whimsy Works Skincare Patrol series offers a powerful alternative: stories that show kids the strength in their struggles and the magic in their uniqueness.

The newest installment, Asthma and Allergies Rescue, is more than a book. It’s the beginning of a movement to change the way children, families, and educators talk about health, identity, and resilience. It’s for every child who ever sat alone at lunch because of a food allergy, hid their eczema under long sleeves, or felt embarrassed to use an inhaler in front of classmates. It’s for every parent who didn’t know how to explain why their child was different and every teacher searching for the right words to help the class understand.

I didn’t just write a story; I built a lifeline for every child who’s ever felt unseen. Whimsy Works is where difference becomes destiny, and healing begins with hope.”

Dr. Susan M. Roberts

Created by public health educator and nurse Dr. Susan M. Roberts, the Whimsy Works Skincare Patrol was born from real stories.

“I created this series after seeing so many kids struggle with asthma, eczema, or food allergies things that made them feel left out,” Roberts shares. “I wanted to give them not just information, but superpowers.”

This book blends vibrant storytelling with real-life emotional depth. It tackles tough topics like bullying, peer pressure, and self-consciousness, but does so with heart, humor, and hope. Through imaginative characters and bold illustrations, young readers are guided on a journey of self-discovery where their challenges become their strengths, and where inclusion, kindness, and understanding are the most powerful tools of all.

When asked what she hopes families take away from the book, Dr. Roberts says:

“That being different is your magic.”

It’s a message that resonates far beyond the doctor’s office or classroom. It reaches into the heart of every child who’s ever felt left out, every caregiver who has wanted to make things better, and every community looking to build something more compassionate.

Already featured in Power Magazine, with appearances on America Tonight with Kate Delaney, and in the upcoming She Is Atlanta documentary with Nicole Barton, the Whimsky Works Skincare Patrol is gaining attention not as a product, but as a platform. A place where children’s stories matter, where health challenges are met with heroism, and where families find both laughter and light.

For celebrity parents, pediatric professionals, and educators looking to give children more than a story—for those seeking a message that empowers, uplifts, and creates conversation. Whimsky Works offers something unforgettable.

It’s not just a book to read.
It’s a journey to begin.
