FRISCO, TX, UNITED STATES, July 17, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Big wheels, bigger smiles, and the boldest clean-up crew in town recently rolled into Northeast Community Park as Junk.com joined the lineup at Frisco's annual Touch-A-Truck event.

The fan-favorite community event brought out thousands of families eager to explore, honk, and climb aboard an impressive fleet of trucks—and Junk.com didn't disappoint. With its bright branding and on-demand clean-up swagger, the Junk.com truck drew a crowd of curious kids and grateful parents alike.

Families line up to explore the Junk.com truck and pick up mini stress-ball trucks during the Touch-A-Truck event at Northeast Community Park in Frisco, TX, where kids got an up-close look at big rigs and the people who operate them.

"We like to say we haul with heart, and today was all about showing the community what we're made of—inside and out," said Nicole Turturici, CEO of Junk.com.

In addition to the truck, Junk.com handed out hundreds of mini stress-relief trucks, which proved to be the surprise hit of the day. Designed to match the full-size version, the squishy souvenirs were a favorite among little hands and social media feeds.
