Both tests have been rigorously validated across multinational clinical studies and are supported by more than 20 peer-reviewed publications. "This partnership marks a key step in our international expansion and reflects strong alignment with clinically sophisticated partners focused on early detection and prevention," said Rhonda Rhyne, President and CEO of Prevencio. With clinics across Canada, Heart Fit Clinic is renowned for delivering evidence-based cardiovascular care through tailored prevention programs, diagnostics, and therapies—making it an ideal partner to showcase the clinical and commercial utility of the HART tests in a real-world, consumer-accessible setting.
