

KlaymanToskes Investigates Advisory Fees on Alternative Investments After SEC Action Against American Portfolios

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, July 21, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- National securities law firm KlaymanToskes urges investors to review their brokerage accounts for improper advisory fees on alternative investments following a recent enforcement action by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) against American Portfolios Advisors, Inc. The SEC found that American Portfolios improperly charged advisory fees on certain alternative investments that did not require such fees, resulting in financial harm to investors.

Alternative investments, including private placements, hedge funds, and other illiquid products, often carry heightened risks such as limited transparency, valuation challenges, and difficulty in liquidation. These complexities require careful management and transparent fee structures aligned with investors' best interests. The SEC's findings reveal that some advisory firms may impose advisory fees on these products where such fees are not warranted, increasing costs unnecessarily for clients.

KlaymanToskes warns that American Portfolios Advisors is not alone in these practices. Other brokerage firms and registered investment advisers may also be charging improper advisory fees on illiquid or alternative assets, impacting a wide range of investors.

Investors who hold alternative investments and believe they may have been charged excessive or inappropriate advisory fees are encouraged to seek a free, confidential portfolio review with KlaymanToskes. The firm offers over 30 years of experience in legal analysis to determine whether fees align with industry standards, and if a financial recovery may be warranted.
