As privacy standards evolve in online hiring, this certification demonstrates Jobma's investment in secure, compliant practices that support both employers and candidates.

ISO/IEC 27001 is a global gold standard for information security, and it means Jobma has been independently audited and verified for having robust systems, controls, and risk management in place. In video interviewing, where candidate and recruiter data may be collected and shared, maintaining strong security practices is critical.

Having ISO 27001 certification means the platform operates with a robust structure to store, share, and protect this data every step of the way, helping you stay compliant and build trust with your users.

“Data protection isn't just a feature, it's a foundation Jobma is built on. Achieving the ISO/IEC 27001 certification reinforces our commitment to building trustworthy hiring technology rooted in security, privacy, and responsible data practices,” said Krishna Kant, Managing Partner at Jobma.

More than just a technical achievement, this milestone strengthens Jobma's competitive position in the AI video interviewing and hiring space, especially for global organizations and enterprises that require secure, audit-ready solutions.
