Group. "When schools are facing new demands or shifting priorities, it's important to work with organizations that share our focus on practical results for educators and students. Cellairis brings that same commitment, and the CyberSystem is a strong example of what we can accomplish together."

This partnership reflects how Delcom Group and Cellairis work together to meet the evolving needs of schools. After the passage of Texas House Bill 1481, which requires schools to address student cell phone use, the two companies quickly aligned to provide a ready-to-deploy solution. The CyberSystem offers a straightforward, scalable approach to reducing classroom distractions while keeping devices secure and accessible. By combining Cellairis' product innovation with Delcom's long-standing relationships across K-12 districts, the partnership gives schools fast access to tools that support both compliance and a more focused learning environment.
