HOUSTON, TX, UNITED STATES, July 28, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Next Day Access, a leading provider of mobility and accessibility solutions, is proud to announce the grand opening of Next Day Access Central & South Houston, as well as Next Day Access Waco & College Station, TX. Both locations are owned and operated by Ben Bayles.

Before he pursued business ownership, Ben spent over two decades in the oil and gas industry, where he applied his engineering degree from Texas A&M and his MBA from Sam Houston State to lead major initiatives and drive meaningful change. "As a Lean Six Sigma Master Blackbelt, he specialized in designing equipment, optimizing supplier relationships, and mentoring high-performing teams through continuous improvement efforts," Ben shared. Beyond the boardroom, Ben is deeply committed to investing in his community's physical and spiritual needs, serving with numerous nonprofit organizations, and supporting underserved populations.

That same passion for helping others led Ben to explore ways to blend purpose with entrepreneurship. After discussing his ideas with his franchise consultant, who recommended Next Day Access. "The idea of stepping into a proven business model, one that already demonstrated success and community impact, felt like the perfect way to channel my values into action," said Ben. "It offered the opportunity to make a meaningful difference while building something I believed in Ben looks forward as he launches these new locations to leading a team committed to ensuring safety and security within his community, applying the knowledge he has gained to have a hands-on impact. "I'm excited to help people navigate their personal challenges and discover solutions that truly fit their mobility needs: bringing comfort, safety, and independence back into their lives," Ben said. "Being part of that transformation is incredibly rewarding." He also looks forward to collaborating with fellow franchisees and local businesses to see how they can amplify their collective impact. His opening day is July 28, 2025.
