

Drag Queen Meets Dr. Pimple Popper, Then Takes Over Times Square, Vegas Strip & more with Viral Ask A Queen Tour

This shines a light on the humanity behind the heels, to show that drag queens are not only entertainers, but deeply kind, compassionate, & courageous people.

NY, UNITED STATES, August 1, 2025
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Drag Performer Miss Jessica Launches National "Ask A Queen" Tour Highlighting Queer Visibility and Street-Level Connection

Drag entertainer Jessica L'Whor is taking her signature brand of unfiltered humor, viral storytelling, and LGBTQ+ advocacy on the road with the Ask A Queen summer tour. Kicking off in Times Square and wrapping on the Las Vegas Strip, the tour brings a live, street interview experience to cities across the United States during a time when queer expression continues to face political and cultural scrutiny.

L'Whor, who has amassed a devoted online following without the platform of RuPaul's Drag Race (yet), has built her reputation through digital content, grassroots visibility, and live community engagement. With over a decade of experience performing on stages, in brunch venues, and across streaming platforms, her tour merges comedy, candidness, and activism into a live experience described as "part confessional, part cultural commentary, and completely unscripted."

About the Tour: Ask A Queen

Ask A Queen is a pop-up, on-the-street show format that invites the public to participate in real-time Q&A with L'Whor. Filmed at each tour location, the series encourages spontaneous interaction, unscripted humor, and meaningful conversations between a drag artist and everyday passersby.

The series was developed to highlight the humanity behind drag, aiming to counter harmful narratives and emphasize that drag performers are not only artists but also advocates, educators, and community builders.

“Ask A Queen is an invitation to connect beyond the wigs and lashes,” said L’Whor. “At a time when queer voices are under attack, this tour is about visibility, joy, and radical empathy.”
