

Austin Disaster Relief Network Provides Ongoing Relief and Long-Term Recovery Support Across Central Texas Flood Zones

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, August 1, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Disaster

Type and Location:

ADRN Expands Flood Response Operations in Travis, Williamson, and Kerr Counties

Date of Incident: July 4, 2025

As Central Texas continues to recover from the catastrophic flash flooding in early July, the Austin Disaster Relief Network (ADRN) remains fully engaged in providing financial, physical, emotional, and spiritual care to impacted families across Travis County (Sandy Creek area), Williamson County, Kerr County, and surrounding areas.

We are committed to walking with survivors through this crisis, not just with supplies and cleanup, but with hope, faith, and lasting support.”

Dwight Bailey, Executive Director

Since deploying on July 7, ADRN has mobilized over 2,527 volunteers to support flood survivors with cleanup, donation distribution, crisis intake (providing immediate financial assistance and access to longer-term support), emotional/spiritual care, and resource navigation. Survivors in Travis County are being served at the Multi-Agency Resource Center (MARC) on Friday and Saturday (Aug 1-2), located at North Way Bible Church (589 San Gabriel Pkwy, Leander, TX 78641), where ADRN is providing direct assistance, in collaboration with city and state partners.

ADRN teams are also active in Travis County, Sandy Creek, and Williamson County, helping residents clean and rebuild, and working to deliver critical supplies to Kerr County.

“Recovery is not a weekend project—it’s a long journey,” said Rev. Dr. Dwight Bailey, Executive Director of ADNR. “We are grateful for all who have given their weekends and weekdays to help move recovery forward, and we are committed to walking with survivors through this crisis, not just with supplies and cleanup, but with hope, faith, and lasting support.”

Get Help or Get Involved

Survivors in need of assistance, or those wanting to volunteer or donate, can visit: ADNR.org/CentralTexasFlood Together, we can rebuild homes—and restore hope.

As part of this multi-county mobilization, ADNR will continue to manage donations, deploy trained volunteers, distribute essential cleanup and hygiene supplies to impacted communities, and connect survivors with vetted partners who can assist them in rebuilding their lives — physically, emotionally, and spiritually.

ADNR Response Actions:

Hotline and Cleanup Requests:

If you need help cleaning up damage from the July 4th Central Texas Flooding, call 512-806-0800 OR 211 to be connected to volunteers from local organizations and community groups who may be able to assist with Muck Out, Debris, Tarping, or Trees.
