With this latest release, Alex Levin transforms Sukkah décor into fine art, a powerful fusion of tradition and creativity that honors the deep spiritual significance of Sukkot while visually celebrating the land, people, and values of Israel.

The Sukkah is more than a structure, it's a spiritual sanctuary," says Alex Levin. "It is a sacred space where heaven and earth meet, where we celebrate our connection to nature, history, and HaShem."

A Celebration of Light, Faith, and Heritage
Sukkot is a time of joy, unity, and reflection when Jewish families gather beneath the open sky, dwelling in temporary booths (sukkot) as a remembrance of the Exodus and divine protection in the wilderness. For Alex Levin, whose work often explores the tension between the earthly and the divine, this festival provided the perfect canvas for artistic expression.

What Makes the Collection Unique?

The Alex Levin Sukkah Decoration Collection features a variety of high-quality, visually stunning pieces that reflect themes central to Jewish identity. These artworks are not generic decorations, they are finely crafted expressions of meaning and memory, designed to create a sacred ambiance within your sukkah.

Key highlights include:

□ Jerusalem-Themed Panels

Wall-sized, weather-resistant fabric and vinyl panels depicting illuminated scenes of Jerusalem at sunrise and sunset, the Western Wall (Kotel), and historic synagogues in the Old City. These works bring the holy city directly into your Sukkah.

□ Seven Species of the Land of Israel (Shivat HaMinim)

A breathtaking stained-glass mosaic-inspired series illustrating the Seven Species mentioned in the Torah: wheat, barley, grapes, figs, pomegranates, olives, and dates. Each piece is rich with color, symbolism, and deep Torah connection.

□ Inspirational Hebrew Verses and Blessings

Custom pieces include calligraphy and artwork that incorporate Hebrew blessings, psalms, and quotes about Sukkot, connecting art and Torah.

□ Collectible Limited Edition Prints

For collectors and Judaica lovers, the line includes signed limited-edition prints that blend classical technique with modern spirituality, perfect for reuse and display beyond the holiday.

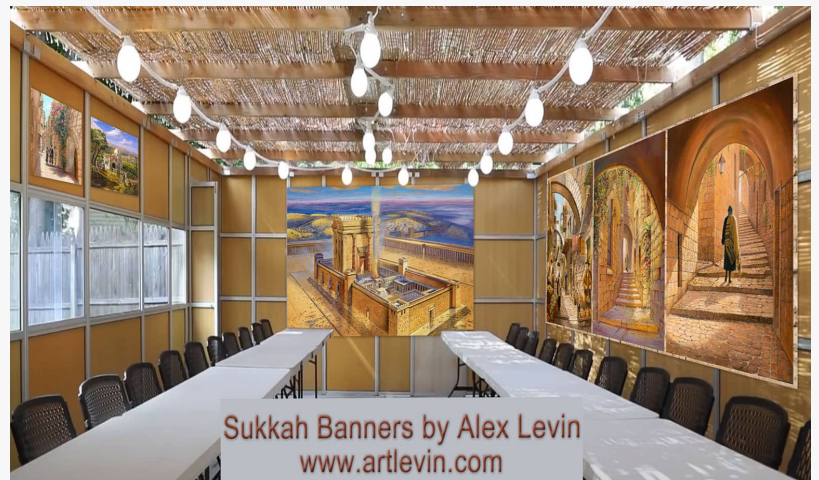

Crafted for Durability, Designed for Beauty

All of the Sukkah decorations are made using high-resolution archival printing, UV-protected inks, and durable waterproof materials suitable for both indoor and outdoor sukkahs. From large sukkahs in synagogues to family backyard sukkot, the pieces are built to withstand wind, rain, and sunlight while maintaining their brilliance.

Sizes range from sukkah poster art prints to large panoramic banners. Installation is simple, with built-in grommets and hooks included on most designs.

A Vision Rooted in Jerusalem

For over two decades, Alex Levin has been revered for his profound connection to Jerusalem, which has served as both muse and metaphor throughout his career. His art bridges the ancient and the modern, the mystical and the tangible precisely what makes it resonate so deeply during the holiday of Sukkot, which embodies these same tensions.

“When I first visited Jerusalem in 1990,” Levin recalls, “I felt something ancient awaken inside me. Since then, my mission has been to express that sacred energy through paint and canvas, and now, through Sukkah art.”

Each piece in the new collection reflects this spiritual bond, with textures, colors, and compositions inspired by Jerusalem’s stone, light, and eternal soul.

Why Sukkah Decorations Matter

In recent years, Jewish families around the world have begun to explore more creative ways of decorating their sukkot, using themes that reflect Torah, Eretz Yisrael, and Jewish continuity. Alex Levin’s collection answers this need with depth and beauty, helping to turn the Sukkah into a space of inspiration for all ages.

Whether you’re hosting guests, leading a community celebration, or creating cherished family memories, these decorations add beauty and meaning to every moment.
