Others have built community-focused publishing businesses and customer-led travel services that place sustainability and service at their core.

These startups have demonstrated that innovation does not require vast resources or large teams. Many of this year's winners have grown through reinvestment, customer insight, and a focus on solving overlooked problems with well-designed, accessible solutions. Their approaches are rooted in real experience, sector expertise, and a willingness to challenge established models in favour of more inclusive, sustainable alternatives.
