"Today's regulatory environment demands more than spreadsheets. Leading manufacturers recognize that regulatory operations are mission-critical, revenue-generating departments and need systems to match that level of importance," said James Gianoutsos, Founder and CEO of Rimsys.

Rimsys' unified, enterprise-grade RIM platform centralizes and automates critical regulatory processes—including market registrations, Unique Device Identification (UDI), essential principles/GSPR, and submissions management—reducing compliance risk and accelerating market access. Specifically tailored to the needs of medical device and diagnostics companies, Rimsys enables seamless collaboration across RA, QA, and commercial teams while delivering the audit-ready transparency global regulators demand.

"As more organizations embrace regulatory digital transformation, Rimsys is proud to lead the industry forward," added Gianoutsos.
