Honeybadger, the longest-running and most respected Bitcoin-only conference in Europe, is set to return to Riga this summer for its seventh edition. Organized by the team behind Hodl Hodl, this non-profit event has become a global cornerstone for cypherpunks, Bitcoin developers, investors, and entrepreneurs.

This year's conference will welcome some of the most prominent names in Bitcoin, including Willy Woo, Adam Back, Giacomo Zucco, Preston Pysh, Peter Todd, Martti Malmi, and many others. Known for its deep technical focus, Bitcoin-first ethos, and commitment to privacy and financial sovereignty, Baltic Honeybadger delivers unfiltered, high-signal content across two days of talks and panels.

Every year, we push it further, introducing cutting-edge tech, experimenting with new ideas, and giving stage time to the brightest minds in the space.”

Anna, CEO of Hodl Hodl

The main sponsor of the event is Debifi – a non-custodial Bitcoin-backed lending platform providing institutional-grade liquidity.

Unlike general crypto expos, Baltic Honeybadger maintains a Bitcoin-only stance, attracting hardcore Bitcoiners and serious industry participants.

Past speakers have included Jack Dorsey, Michael Saylor, Saifedean Ammous, Andreas M. Antonopoulos, and Jack Mallers, reinforcing the event's significance and authority.

In addition to the main stage, the event will feature its signature Cypherpunk Stage, where off-the-record conversations explore sensitive topics in privacy, self-custody, and censorship resistance.

Coinciding with Riga Bitcoin Week, attendees can look forward to workshops, meetups, and side events taking place across the city, covering a wide range of topics from freedom and self-sovereignty to deep tech.
