American families should not have to compromise when it comes to their child's nutrition, and that's why we're passionate about making LittleOak more widely available.”

Elke Pascoe, LittleOak's founder and CEO

Designed specifically for the U.S. market, LittleOak's stage 3 toddler drink is crafted from fresh, full-cream, grass-fed goat milk sourced straight from their local farm. The first toddler drink in the world to be certified 100% palm oil free and to replace standard canola oil with cold-pressed flaxseed oil, the fortified product naturally contains A2-casein protein and prebiotic oligosaccharides (the closest to human breast milk), along with 16 essential vitamins and minerals needed for healthy growth and development. The powder recently won the Clean Label Project Purity Award and contains no synthetic additives, no corn glucose syrup, no maltodextrin, no GMOs, no soy, no fish oil, and no skim milk or whey powder. Plus, LittleOak's unique From Fresh process cuts the heating process in half compared to conventional formulas, helping to preserve the inherent nutrition of goat milk.

Said Elke Pascoe, LittleOak's founder and CEO, “Too many formulas and toddler drinks on the market today are simply not as good as a baby or toddler deserves, and as a mom, that just wasn't acceptable to me. American families should not have to compromise when it comes to their child's nutrition, and that's why we're passionate about making LittleOak more widely available and bringing U.S. parents and caregivers a simple-ingredient and easier-to-digest alternative to the standard toddler drink. They deserve nothing less.”
