The market is set to increase from $10.22 billion in 2024 to $10.89 billion in 2025 registering a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.6%. This upward trend during the historical period can be traced back to various factors such as global trade and commerce expansion, surge in instances of natural disasters or humanitarian crises, booming e-commerce activities, elevated security concerns, as well as changes in global trade policies, tariffs, or geopolitical tensions.

The market size for cargo aircraft charter services is projected to experience significant expansion in the coming years, reaching $15.49 billion by 2029 with a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.2%. This predicted growth can be credited to numerous influences such as the persistent growth in online retail, an intensified emphasis on creating robust supply chains, airport modernization and expansion, a global transition towards renewable energy resources, changes in international trade agreements, tariffs, or geopolitical aspects. Some key trends for this period encompass advancements in aviation technology, the use of digital platforms, the personalization of charter services to address individual customer requirements, the employment of fluctuating pricing tactics, and heightened cooperation between charter service providers, airlines, logistic firms, and tech corporations.

What Are Key Factors Driving The Demand In The Global Cargo Aircraft Charter Service Market?

The boom in air travel passengers is anticipated to fuel the expansion of the cargo aircraft charter service market. Individuals who journey by commercial airlines or private aircraft for diverse reasons are considered air passengers. Such services can support these passengers in various circumstances, including humanitarian crises or natural disasters, transport of vital goods, business journeys, and specific services. For instance, according to the Bureau of Transportation Statistics, a US government agency, American Airlines saw a 30% hike in passenger numbers, rising from 658 million in 2021 to 853 million in 2022. Consequently, this surge in air travel passengers is steering the growth of the cargo aircraft charter service market.
