Party on the Moon, which has performed over 1,000 shows worldwide, was selected to provide entertainment for the intimate reception that included music industry professionals Kid Rock, Randy Travis, Marcus King, and Zac Brown, along with hit songwriters, producers, and music executives.

"This May, we had the honor of performing at what was truly a night to remember," said Dennis Smith, band leader of Party on the Moon. "We often say we play 'the Academy Awards of people's lives,' and this celebration was one for the record books."

Johnson, a 10-time Grammy nominee and Grand Ole Opry member, has established himself as a significant voice in contemporary American country music. He has earned Song of the Year honors from both the Academy of Country Music and Country Music Association for tracks including "Give It Away" and "In Color."

His work has been featured in major publications including The New York Times, Rolling Stone, and The Wall Street Journal.

The evening showcased Party on the Moon's new country western offerings, which the band developed to meet growing demand for country-themed celebrations. The performance drew from a classic country catalog, including songs from Dolly Parton, Zac Brown Band, and Alabama.

For the Johnson reception, the band worked with additional musicians, including fiddle and pedal steel guitar players, to deliver an authentic country sound that matched the musical preferences of the bride and groom.

Party on the Moon has built a client roster that includes corporate executives, private party hosts, and philanthropists across various industries. The band's performers include touring artists who have worked with established acts, including Diana Ross, Train, Prince, Jennifer Lopez, Maroon Five, and Carrie Underwood.

Their standard performance format includes a three-hour show with over 100 customized songs, professional choreography, and costume design.
