This exclusive educational event features Dr. Kevin T. Murphy, M.D., a leading innovator in noninvasive brain-based therapies and father of an autistic son.

Dr. Murphy will present on Personalized Repetitive Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation (PrTMS®) — a medication-free, science-backed treatment that has shown significant benefits in children with autism.

“We’re seeing improvements in language, better eye contact, kids wearing clothes they couldn’t tolerate before, and even using the toilet independently. Sleep is one of the biggest changes—it improves across the board. We also notice gains in speech and language, motor skills, and especially auditory processing. These kids can go out in public without being overwhelmed by noise,” says Dr. Murphy of children treated with PrTMS®.

PrTMS® offers hope for families seeking new options beyond traditional therapies. By rebalancing brainwave activity, this non-invasive treatment stimulates specific areas of the brain, potentially improving symptoms of ASD, all without the need for medication.
