In addition to cryptocurrency, ShipCargo Ai now offers multiple payment and financing options designed to serve both residential customers and dealerships. Individual shippers relocating their vehicles can take advantage of flexible auto transport financing through Klarna, while dealerships and enterprise customers gain access to extended credit lines through ShipCargo Ai's partnership with Denim, a financing platform recently acquired by Truckstop.com. Qualified dealerships can access credit lines with 30- and 60-day terms, making high-volume vehicle shipping more manageable and efficient.

“ShipCargo Ai is committed to offering customers flexibility in every part of the process — from how they pay, to how their vehicles are delivered,” said Kevin Parada, founder and CEO of ShipCargo Ai. “By offering options like Bitcoin, Klarna, and Denim financing, we’re bringing a modern, digital-first approach to auto transport that fits the needs of today’s customers and dealerships.”

ShipCargo Ai differentiates itself as one of the most forward-looking Houston auto transport companies, offering:

- Instant quotes for both dealerships and residential shippers at www.shipcargoi.com
- Open and enclosed shipping options for standard vehicles and luxury or exotic cars
- Door-to-door transport and a nationwide terminal network for easy pickup and delivery
- AI-powered carrier matching and advanced safety verification through a partnership with Highway.com, protecting customers from double-broker fraud

By combining advanced payment flexibility with technology-driven logistics, ShipCargo Ai continues to expand its role as a trusted partner for dealership auto transport, auto auction logistics, and individual relocations nationwide.
