“We are thrilled to announce our partnership with Edovo, a leader in correctional education and rehabilitation solutions,” said HomeWAV CEO Morteza Sahebkar. “This collaboration marks a major step forward in HomeWAV's commitment to providing meaningful opportunities for incarcerated individuals. We believe access to education is key to rehabilitation and reentry success, and we're proud to expand these resources across every HomeWAV tablet."

HomeWAV's continued investment in meaningful technology brings added value through its new partnership with Edovo, providing over 35,000 hours of free content from more than 300 industry-leading educational providers, including academic instruction, job training, life skills, mental health support, basic literacy, and faith-based learning. As HomeWAV expands into new territories, this offering helps strengthen communities by supporting safer facilities, equitable access to rehabilitative resources, and successful reentry.

The rollout also includes powerful digital tools that allow facility staff to monitor learner engagement, track course completion, and measure individual progress over time. These insights enable data-driven decisions about programming and help support reentry planning by identifying skills gained and an individual's readiness for transition.

Edovo's mission aligns with HomeWAV's dedication to innovation, equity, and successful outcomes within the corrections system. Together, the two companies aim to empower incarcerated individuals with the tools they need to prepare for life beyond incarceration.
