Services, a leading provider of comprehensive mental health care, announced the opening of its new clinic in Salem, Massachusetts. The state-of-the-art facility represents a significant expansion of accessible mental health services for residents throughout the North Shore region. The Salem clinic offers a full spectrum of mental health services, including individual counseling, group therapy, and medication management, ensuring personalized support for every patient's needs.

With their expansion into the Salem community, Northeast Health Services looks to address the growing demand for quality mental health care in Essex County, where recent reporting illustrates the need for access to mental health care.

In the North Shore Community Action Programs' Community Assessment Report & Strategic Plan for 2024-2026, lack of mental health recourses was a top theme in the findings. It was determined that there are insufficient providers and resources to meet the mental health crisis occurring in the region. The need for mental health services rose to the fourth need in this Community Needs Assessment. In the prior assessment three years ago, the need ranked in seventh place in the survey conducted.

Northeast Health Services aims to be a core partner with the community to address these concerns.

The Salem clinic joins Northeast Health Services' network of facilities dedicated to serving diverse communities across Massachusetts. The organization has remained steadfast in its mission to provide evidence-based treatment while fostering hope, healing, and recovery for thousands of individuals and families.
