Everyday.Vegas Magazine, the city's digital voice for locals, is proud to announce the launch of its brand-new Weekly Guide Section, created with a hyper-local focus to serve the real heartbeat of Las Vegas.

A Hyper-Local Weekly Guide for Locals, by Locals

Unlike traditional entertainment roundups that spotlight the Strip or tourist-heavy attractions, the Everyday.Vegas Weekly Guide is designed to help locals make the most of their days and nights in the city. Each edition offers curated picks for restaurants, activities, and events happening that week—designed around neighborhood favorites, off-strip gems, and the cultural experiences that matter most to residents. This guide is not just another listing—it's a roadmap for living like a true local, spotlighting hidden gems, seasonal experiences, and businesses that define the community.

In tandem with the new Weekly Guide, Everyday.Vegas is reimagining its Local Events Section. The publication has stripped away the tourist-driven clutter, removing non-essential Strip promotions and tourist-focused events. Instead, it now shines a light exclusively on happenings that locals genuinely care about—community festivals, neighborhood markets, arts and cultural showcases, and grassroots gatherings across the valley. This approach underscores Everyday.Vegas's commitment to being a magazine built for Las Vegans, not visitors.

Trusted by Locals, Loved by Businesses

Since its launch, Everyday.Vegas has experienced an overwhelming response from both readers and local businesses. Residents trust the publication to highlight authentic experiences, while local restaurants, shops, and community organizations see it as a trusted platform to connect directly with their neighbors. This two-way relationship has fueled rapid growth, reinforcing Everyday.Vegas as one of the city's most reliable sources for discovering and celebrating what makes Las Vegas a community—not just a tourist destination.
