What Is The Forecast For The Outpatient Home Therapy Market From 2024 To 2029?

In the past years, the market size for outpatient home therapy has been seeing robust growth.

It will grow to $72.97 billion in 2029 at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR)
of 6.3%.”

The Business Research Company

The sector, which is expected to surge from $53.59 billion in 2024 to $57.11 billion in 2025, has a future compound annual growth rate (CAGR) projected at 6.6%. The historic period's growth is due to factors such as the rising demand for custom-made care, the escalating use of transportable medical devices, increased understanding of the benefits of physical therapy, growing demand for affordable treatment options, and the increasing backing from healthcare insurance companies.

The market size for outpatient home therapy is predicted to experience considerable growth in the forthcoming years, with an expected value of $72.97 billion in 2029 and a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.3%. This predicted rise in the forthcoming period is due to multiple factors, including the increasing adoption of AI and remote supervision tools, the escalation in the investment in home-based health care facilities, a growing preference for value-driven healthcare models, an increase in the number of experienced home therapists, and a surge in the adoption of telehealth. Notable trends to watch out for in the projected period are innovations in rehabilitative wearable technology, the establishment of hybrid care models, cutting-edge innovation in remote patient monitoring solutions, progress in virtual reality-based therapy, and the creation of mobile therapy apps.

What Are Key Factors Driving The Demand In The Global Outpatient Home Therapy Market?

The growth of the outpatient home therapy market is predicted to be fuelled by the enlarging scope of telemedicine services. These telemedicine services offer healthcare delivery through digital communication platforms, allowing patients to interact with healthcare professionals without the need for physical visits. The advancement of these telemedicine services stems from the increasing demand for accessible healthcare, predominantly for individuals residing in remote or underserved areas who can gain from timely healthcare consultations without having to travel. Such services are essential to outpatient home therapy as they enable extensive supervision and professional advice, assisting patients in adhering to their treatment schemes and getting immediate assistance from their homes. For example, as per the US-based government agency, International Trade Administration, by 2025, Japan's telemedicine market is projected to achieve approximately $404.5 million in September 2022. Consequently, the progression of telemedicine services is spurring the growth of the outpatient home therapy market.

What Are The Key Trends Shaping The Outpatient Home Therapy Industry?

Key players in the outpatient home therapy market are concentrating on creating innovative solutions such as home rehabilitation programs, in an attempt to augment patient recovery and enhance results via personalized home care. Home rehabilitation programs entail structured therapy and recuperation plans which patients implement at home, usually after a surgical procedure, injury, or an illness like a stroke, joint replacement, or chronic disease. For example, South Shore VNA (Visiting Nurse Association), a non-profit healthcare organization based in the United States, introduced a home-based outpatient rehabilitation program in October 2024. This program aimed at delivering superior rehabilitation services directly to patients in their homes. It provides a variety of therapies such as physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech therapy for individuals recovering from surgery, injuries, or those managing chronic conditions. The objective of this program is to enhance accessibility and convenience, and improve the overall recovery experience for the patient, thereby assisting them in achieving better results and reducing the need for regular visits to outpatient clinics.
