“Launching this series is a significant milestone for Dealzer and for the home-grow community,” said a company spokesperson. “Our latest models incorporate enhanced water changing pumps and a refined, elegant design. We prioritized simplicity—choosing not to integrate third-party apps, which we've learned can increase costs and user frustration. Instead, our systems offer straightforward

Since its inception, Dealzer has built a reputation for both customer support and industry-leading sales, maintaining ongoing relationships with a wide spectrum of indoor gardening enthusiasts across the US and Canada. Each new grow box is handmade in the USA and comes with lifetime customer service and support.

Industry veterans and new customers alike continue to look to Dealzer for grow boxes that combine craftsmanship, automation, and support without the need for paid app subscriptions or complicated digital controls. The new line reflects Dealzer's commitment to providing practical, effective grow solutions—remaining focused on needs voiced by the growing community over the past four years.
