When AEDs need best-in-class care AED service plans, they call AED Service America”

Douglas C. Comstock

Unlike software reminder systems that simply send emails to replace pads or batteries, the company provides hands-on AED service plans that guarantee compliance, reliability, and peace of mind.

A Culture of Caring in AED Management

Founder and Director Doug Comstock credits the company's 100% retention rate to what he calls a “Culture of Caring.”

“AED service plans are not just about checking boxes,” said Comstock. “They’re about ensuring that every AED is response-ready when it matters most. Our clients stay with us year after year because they know we take their life-saving equipment as seriously as they do.”

This approach includes the company’s unmatched real-time technician verification system.

Every AED inspection is documented with a digital field summary report and an image, which must be reviewed and approved by an account manager before the technician can move on. This eliminates errors and ensures no AED is overlooked — a level of oversight unique to AEDserviceAmerica.com.

Compliance and Reliability That Go Beyond Software

AEDserviceAmerica.com emphasizes that AED service plans must go beyond automated part shipments or email reminders. True compliance requires:

- Onsite inspections to verify AED readiness.
- Battery and pad expiration and lot number tracking with real-time oversight.
- Professional, trained technicians who understand AED regulations.
- Emergency response guarantees, with technicians onsite within 48 hours — often within just 4 hours.

This comprehensive approach ensures organizations remain compliant with OSHA, FDA, and state-level AED laws, while reducing liability risks and strengthening community safety.
