Joining AMTSO gives us the opportunity to collaborate with global leaders in cybersecurity and ensure our SDK integration standards remain aligned with the highest levels of trust and compliance.”

Darius Misiukevicius, Product Manager at Honeygain SDK

AMTSO is the cybersecurity industry's testing standard community, made up of over 60 member organizations and individuals, comprising mainly security vendors and expert test labs from around the world.

As concerns about online safety and privacy continue to grow, Honeygain's decision to join AMTSO underlines the company's proactive approach to building trust within the developer ecosystem and end-user community. By working with AMTSO, Honeygain will contribute to shaping best practices in testing and validating the safety of internet-enabled technologies.

“At Honeygain, we believe that security and transparency are the foundation of sustainable innovation,” said Darius Misiukevicius, Product Manager at Honeygain SDK . “Joining AMTSO gives us the opportunity to collaborate with global leaders in cybersecurity and ensure our SDK integration standards remain aligned with the highest levels of trust and compliance.”

Honeygain's SDK technology enables app developers to diversify their monetization strategies while giving users full control and transparency over how their internet connection is shared. By aligning with AMTSO, Honeygain strengthens its safeguards against misuse and underscores its mission to provide ethical, transparent, and secure monetization alternatives.
