Warren's Harborview upgraded its kitchen-to-dining room access

This automation is a life changer. It's made our service smoother and more efficient, especially during busy times. Our guests are noticing the difference.”

Restaurant Staff Member

Previously relying on a traditional swing door, the restaurant faced challenges during peak hours, as staff navigated tight spaces while carrying trays of fresh seafood. The new automatic sliding door system has dramatically improved workflow, allowing servers to move effortlessly between the kitchen and dining room—enhancing both speed and safety.

“This automation is a life changer,” said a restaurant staff member. “It's made our service smoother and more efficient, especially during busy times. Our guests are noticing the difference.”

Restaurant owner, Mr. Warren also shared his enthusiasm for the upgrade:

"I'm very happy with the doors, this project solved all our issues! Our employees are already getting so used to them, they now wish the other doors in the building were automated."

The custom-fitted solution was designed to complement the restaurant's historic architecture while delivering modern functionality. The Horton Automatics door system meets the unique spatial and aesthetic needs of the building, ensuring a seamless integration.

Before-and-after photos of the renovation highlight the transformation, showcasing how design and technology can elevate the dining experience without compromising the character of a historic space.

The upgrade reflects the restaurant's commitment to tradition, innovation, and attentive service all while preserving its beautiful historic setting.
