

Community College Presidents to Take Center Stage in Rebuilding the American Dream Webinar Series

How Community Colleges Are Restoring Economic and Social Mobility

DALLAS, TX, UNITED STATES, August 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The American Dream has long promised the chance to build a better future. Today, that promise is under threat - opportunity is harder to find, wages have not kept pace with costs, and the path upward is steeper than ever.

According to research from Opportunity Insights, only half of today's young adults earn more than their parents - down from over 90% for those born in 1940. This is more than a troubling statistic; it is a clear signal that the ladders of opportunity are breaking for millions, especially for first-generation, low-income, and historically underserved students.

Community colleges are rebuilding those ladders by providing affordable, career-aligned education, connecting students to in-demand jobs, and creating pathways to lasting economic and social mobility.

ZogoTech's Rebuilding the American Dream webinar series brings together community college Presidents to share how their institutions are expanding opportunity, closing performance gaps, and equipping students with the skills and credentials to thrive in today's economy. This series offers a rare opportunity to hear directly from the leaders shaping the future of opportunity in America.
