As students return to class, Lyons Snyder urges drivers to slow down in school zones and offers legal support for back-to-school injury victims.

PARKLAND, FL, UNITED STATES, August 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As students across Parkland and Coral Springs head back to school, the attorneys at Lyons Snyder Personal Injury Attorneys are urging drivers to slow down, stay alert, and respect school zones a reminder that could save lives.

Founding partners Marc P. Lyons and Philip M. Snyder, both experienced trial attorneys and long-time South Florida residents, say the start of the school year brings a spike in car and pedestrian accidents, many of them preventable.

"We see it every August and September drivers in a rush, distracted behind the wheel, or ignoring reduced speed limits in school zones," said Snyder, a leading personal injury attorney Parkland residents trust. "The consequences can be devastating, especially for children."

Heightened Risk in School Zones

Whether it's parents rushing to drop off kids or commuters cutting through residential neighborhoods, school zones become high-risk areas when traffic laws aren't followed. According to national safety studies, school zone crashes increase by nearly 25% during the first two months of the academic year.

As experienced car accident attorneys Parkland FL, Lyons Snyder is calling attention to the most common causes of these incidents:

- Distracted driving (texting or using GPS)
- Speeding through marked zones
- Failing to stop for school buses
- Unsafe turns near school crosswalks

"Drivers need to treat every school zone like a construction zone, with extra care and caution," said Lyons, a respected personal injury lawyer Coral Springs FL. "It's not just about tickets or fines. It's about protecting kids who are often unpredictable on foot or bike."
