A New Team Takes the Helm for Dîner en Blanc Atlanta

For 2025, Dîner en Blanc, Atlanta enters an exciting chapter under the direction of dynamic new hosts. This year's production is in the hands of Shelia Mants, seasoned events producer and coordinator; Tiffany Nicole Richardson, food and beverage curator; Rosie Bailey, volunteer and marketing strategist; and Michelle Taylor Willis, PR, media, and communications lead. Together, they bring over 110 years of collective experience across events, hospitality, marketing, and media, promising a reinvigorated take on this elegant tradition.

“We're bringing fresh energy, bold ideas, and a distinctly Atlanta flair to this timeless tradition,” says Michelle Taylor Willis. “It's an honor to reimagine a beloved classic in a way that celebrates our city's culture, creativity, and unmistakable Southern spirit.”

This year's theme: Blooming Elegance

This year's Dîner en Blanc introduces an international theme: Blooming Elegance. The event will embody floral élégance and joie de vivre. Inspired by the timeless beauty of flowers, this year's celebration invites guests to experience a soirée that is both refined and poetic—where every detail, from fashion to tablescapes, evokes grace, charm, and the blossoming magic of a perfect evening, à la française.

As a French-inspired event, only wine and champagne are served, but due to the Atlanta alcohol regulations, alcohol cannot be brought from home; instead, guests can pre-order their preferred selections through the official e-store. However, attendees are welcome to bring their own non-alcoholic beverages.

Diner en Blanc – Atlanta gratefully acknowledges Chambord as the official national partner of the 2025 edition of Diner en Blanc.
