About Rob Stewart; Sharkwater Productions

Rob Stewart was an Activist, Biologist, Author and the Filmmaker behind Sharkwater, Revolution and Sharkwater Extinction. Rob's films have been viewed by more than 130 million people, changing laws and public policy across the globe. His first film, Sharkwater began when he was 22-years-old and brought the issue of shark finning for shark fin soup to the world stage, changing laws and public policy worldwide. His second film, Revolution, was the first feature to warn of the devastating effects of ocean acidification – the world might not lose just sharks – we could lose everything, the sharks, reefs that house 25% of the world's fish and potentially the oceans, themselves. In Sharkwater Extinction, Rob finds we are still fishing over 100 million sharks a year and they are now turning up in products for human consumption. Tragically, Rob died in a dive accident filming his final film. His work to save sharks and the oceans lives on through the millions he inspired, conservation organizations, and his powerful films and books.
