while also raising children at home—is truly inspiring. As a member of IOFP, she joins others dedicated to making a difference and leaving a legacy.

“Becoming a member of the International Order of Fantastic Professionals and being awarded the Caregiver's Compass 2025 Award is an honor. This organization represents the highest level of excellence, impact, and transformation, and I am humbled to stand among such distinguished professionals,” said Rebecca Hartman, founder of Essential Home Organization. “I look forward to sharing my insights and contributing my experiences with the IOFP community and continuing to empower others on their journey to success.”

Rebecca's personal journey as a caregiver to her aging mother, combined with her professional expertise in design and project management, uniquely equips her to address the emotional and logistical challenges faced by the sandwich generation. She understands that finding balance between career and the care of both aging parents and children takes patience, intention, and planning. Essential Home Organization provides a comprehensive suite of resources, including Rebecca's book, workbooks, an e-course, workshops, webinars, and speaking engagements. These resources are designed to empower caregivers to take confident action, offering practical systems and compassionate guidance to help families and individuals stay organized, reduce stress, and navigate transitions with clarity and a sense of peace.

"We are excited to have Rebecca Hartman join us as a member of IOFP and are proud to present her with the Caregiver's Compass 2025 Award her for her contributions," said Dr. Allen Lycka, president and CEO of International Order of Fantastic Professionals. "She is an excellent addition to our diverse membership, all committed to excellence, innovation, making an impact, and leaving a legacy."
