A Virginia native with saltwater running through her veins, Aleah Culpepper joins SeaEO as Executive Vice President. Aleah hails from the storied Culpepper family, whose “Culpepper Boats” has been a Port Norfolk institution for over 80 years. While her first love is fashion, Aleah’s true spirit shines outdoors on the water. Her lifelong connection to the sea and family heritage in boating make her a natural leader at SeaEO.

“We often say Aleah could fish before she could walk,” said JP Mancini, Founder and CEO of SeaEO. “She brings unmatched authenticity, passion, and a deep-rooted understanding of maritime tradition to our team.”

Meet Karina Vasquez, Social Media Captain

Taking the helm of SeaEO's growing digital presence is Virginia native and former college athlete, Karina Vasquez, who joins as Social Media Manager. Karina will lead the brand's online storytelling, showcasing breathtaking sunsets, exciting adventures, and unforgettable guest experiences across SeaEO's expanding fleet and destinations.

"Karina is ready to make waves online," Mancini added. "Her energy, creativity, and personal love for the water are the perfect combination to elevate how we connect with our guests."

Originally from Cape Town, South Africa, Ano balances precision with passion, streamlining day-to-day operations while delivering world-class service to clients.

Outside the office, Ano is a marathon runner, youth football coach, and community leader. He also helms his own entrepreneurial venture, Grond Boksy, and sees his role at SeaEO as an opportunity to innovate and grow alongside a fast-rising company.
